As a generic not-project-developer user I am completely at a loss. (...)
Probably this will be a bit more clear when there is a public space to look at for examples. Or perhaps some demo people for comparison. I can hardly believe I'm saying this, but something like that fake person who would automatically ask to be your friend when you signed up for MySpace, back in the before times.

I don't see how a fake user can help in understand kune (probably you achieve the opposite).
