I suggest to introduce a new righth system as google (or picassa, doodle...) do: authorize people who have a link to access to this information. With a special link (generated id as google doc), it should be difficult (but not impossible) to someone to have this access. If it is done, this should be mentioned (in tooltip for example). For example, this could useful to display kune calendar into google calendar.

I don't see how the patched code resolved this issue ?

This issue is about access to semi-private wave by a special link (as google doc) an patch is about email notifications !
